

LOOK THROUGH THEIR EYES

Childhood Trauma Exists

Infant, teen, toddler, tween... any child.

Sometimes, the things adults do may impact children in ways they never imagined. Angry arguments, yelling and hitting could be traumatic to a child. To understand their anxieties, look at each situation through the child's eyes. If you see signs of childhood trauma—withdrawal, clinging, anger, indifference, fear—you can do something.

There is help, and there is hope.
